WiMAX enabling a world of wireless broadband

In a world “always on”, and constant innovation, not only does technology see disruptive evolutions but also the established business models get challenged. WiMAX the wireless broadband enabler is now ready for the big bang. It has arrived at the right moment and is well into its global acceptance as the standard for delivering Internet, voice, and multimedia while on the move. Successful deployment will depend on a win-win combination between service providers, government and regulators, financial and industrial partners.

- What are the technology expectations?
- How do the new devices to come look like?
- When will it happen?

This session will reveal Alcatel-Lucent’s vision of a Mobile and Wireless Broadband world.
